TOKYO AFIRE AFTER SECOND MASSIVE RAID IN 48 HOURS; JAPANESE ADMIT EXTENSIVE DAMAGE TO THE CAPITAL CITY; "PRACTICALLY LAID WASTE"

Announcer Claims That It Is "Literally Scorched To The Ground"

SALE SPREADS FLAMES

Demand for 'Extraordinary' Meeting of 'Jap' Cabinet

By Gerard R. Himmelsbach
I. N. S. Pacific Cable Editor

Tokyo was suffering the fate of Berlin today and was admitting it. After some 500 Superfortresses aged their second massive fire raid on the Jap capital within 48 hours.

Even when returning B-29 crew members told of starting huge fires inside Tokyo's central district, racking the Imperial Palace with flames, the Jap radio was hard admitting extensive damages. One Nip announcer was noted as saying that the assaults had "practically laid waste to what was once the world's third largest metropolis."

Tokyo, said the Nip radio, is literally scorched to the ground. With virtually the entire business district wiped out, and a 70-mile-an-hour gale spreading the flames, that Japanese morale already may be tottering was seen in an assertion by the same Nipponese announcer that a demand for an "extraordinary" meeting of the cabinet had been called by Premier Kantaro Suzuki at 11 a. m., at which the premier had issued a reverent statement relative to the burning of the Imperial Palace and the Onmyia Imperial Palace due to enemy air raids carried out on the night of May 25."

Such a move on the part of the lower Japanese parliamentary chamber might precipitate a new cabinet shake-up, with manifold implications.

In the heavy B-29, carried out Saturday morning (Japanese time) the Superfortresses encountered particularly fierce enemy resistance, including thick anti-aircraft curtains and fighter opposition. The Japs even launched their "baka-bombs" or "flying coffins" against the U. S. bombers, and 3 of the one-man rocket-propelled "suicide" interceptors were shot down by two of the B-29s.

Meanwhile, the cost in blood for American sea and air support of the Okinawa invasion was disclosed by Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, who declared that a total of 5,116 casualties had been sustained by U. S. forces since the beginning of the operation.

Of these, 4,270 were Navy sailors or army men. This figure surpasses both Army and Marine fatalities ashore, and almost equals the total of both land forces.

While relatively few American ships have been sunk by the fanatical Jap suicide pilots, the total damaged now surpasses 50, and on each one casualties have been in-

Cub Pack Work Will Be Discussed at Meeting

A meeting is scheduled for Tuesday evening for the purpose of reorganizing the cub pack work in Bristol. This, the second session of its kind recently, will be held at 7:30 Tuesday evening in Bristol Presbyterian Church.

The cub work of the entire community will be embraced, and parents of boys of cub age are urged to attend in the interest of the boys.

It is stated that it is necessary for one or both parents to be present if the boy is to participate in cub pack work.

CHINESE ADVANCE TO CUT "JAP" OVERLAND ROUTE

CHUNGKING—Chinese forces in Kwangsi Province advanced steadily along the Kweichow-Kwangsi Highway in a drive to cut Japan's overland route to Indo-China, the Chinese communiqué reported today.

Chinese forces completed the capture of Ssuen and the Jap garrison fled in disorder toward Tienho while other columns seized Kwaiyuan, 25 miles west of strategic Yichang.

Japanese resistance stiffened however as the Chungking forces continued their advance in the direction of Linchow, particularly after their retreat to the east bank of the Lung river.

On the western Hunan front other Chinese forces continued to hammer their way eastward toward Fooking where they reached the area west of Tanton.

INDIAN TROOPS OCCUPY MOKSHITWA

Kandy, Ceylon—British Fifth Indian Division troops occupied the Burma village of Mokshitwa, 14 miles northeast of Pegu, the southeast Asia command communiqué announced today.

Stiff fighting was reported in progress on the west bank of the Irrawaddy river two miles west of Kama. Heavy bombers of the Eastern Air Command destroyed a bridge at Tako on the Bangkok-Singapore railroad and smashed locomotives and rolling stock with low-level strafing attacks.

Airplane Production Cut By 17,000 by U. S. Army

WASHINGTON, May 26—Cutbacks in airplane production, eliminating 17,000 planes scheduled for the next eighteen months, were announced last night by the War Department.

The revised program reduced airplane production by 30 per cent in the last half of this year, by 40 per cent in the first half of 1946 and by 45 per cent in the last half.

"Decreased requirements because of revisions in lend-lease, brought about by the cessation of hostilities in Europe, are responsible for a substantial percentage of the new production schedule changes," the Army said, adding:

"The remainder of the cutback came from reduction in Air Force requirements for a one-front war. Until the termination of the war in Europe it was impossible to assess accurately how many planes would be available for further fighting."

In a message to aircraft manufacturers and workers, Gen. H. H. Arnold, Commander of the Army Air Forces, praised the industry for furnishing "the planes we asked when we asked for them."

THE JOHNSON FUNERAL

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

On Loving Russia

Washington, May 26—CLEARHEADED observers returning from San Francisco appear agreed that there will emerge from the conference a generally satisfactory charter upon which hope that another great war can be averted may reasonably rest. They also agree on another thing—to wit, that for us, firm alliance with, and complete understanding of, the British, more than ever is a basic essential.

THIS DOES NOT IN THE LEAST MEAN that the British and ourselves are to form an alliance against Russia. It does not imply any degree of unfriendliness toward Russia. It does not in anyway indicate that there is not full realization of the vast power of Russia as a nation; nor failure to appreciate the gallantry of her fighting forces, the greatness of her war losses and the high desirability of living in concord with her. There can be no realistic concept of permanent peace in the world without Russian co-operation. Conceding all this, it still is true that for us British co-operation and understanding remain the prime necessity. First, there are rate power is patently absurd. For another, the necessity of complete cooperation between the English-speaking nations is plainer than before. Only the incurably anti-British dissent from Mr. Churchill's recent declaration that "it would be an ill day for all the world if Britain and America did not go on working together and marching together and sailing together and flying together whenever something has to be done for the sake of freedom and fair play all over the world."

—O—

Charles K. Jenigen, S. 1/c, and Albert J. Jenigen, also of the U. S. Navy, met recently in the Pacific Ocean. Albert is stationed aboard a submarine, and Charles is on a surface ship. This is the first they had seen each other in three years. They were permitted by the officers to visit each other's crafts. Another brother, Clayton J. Jenigen, F. 2/c, is also in the Pacific area.

RUN-AROUND

Almost everything is wrong with the bold proposal which President Truman has made to Congress that he be given full and final authority over every one of the 3,500,000 Federal jobs in the United States.

This is simply an audacious attempt on the new President's part to get Congress to pass the Reorganization plan which President Roosevelt demanded in 1938—and which was turned down in a storm of public disapproval at that time because it would have made Roosevelt a dictator.

It also is a brazen effort to hold on to one of the most dangerous of the "temporary" war powers given by Congress to the Chief Executive—given with the distinct understanding on both sides that it was to end with hostilities.

*Moreover, it is a perfectly obvious attempt to bypass and scrap the civil service laws, and to bring all Federal employees under the thumb of Democratic Chairman Lannegan—who has publicly protested the employment of those he called "statesmen;" job-holders who under civil service had assurance of tenure of office regardless of the whims and pressures of patronage-minded political bosses.

There is something almost fantastic in the idea that a sort of WPA-project has to be set up to reduce the Federal payrolls as war needs diminish.

Yet that appears to be a definite part of what is in the President's mind. A new agency, possibly headed by a "manager," would be set up, given an appropriation and a staff—spending more money and hiring more people when the idea is to spend less and hire fewer.

If there is anything which the United States doesn't need, so long as it has a President, it is a "manager."

What in the world, other than "manager," is the purpose of the President himself?

For a century and a half no Chief Executive has found it necessary to even hint that he needs to delegate to some other party his most essential function—that of running the executive departments.

Furthermore, the thought of a "manager" awakens—or certainly should awaken—grave uneasiness in all thoughtful citizens.

How did Mussolini rise? He came into power because King Victor Emmanuel thought the Italian people needed a "manager."

How did Hitler get control? Hindenburg, facing growing problems in his declining years, appointed him "manager."

What better examples of the dangers of creating managers to by-pass the Constitutional lines of administration could the American people ask?

The entire proposal is illogical in the extreme. Everyone knows that there are at least a million more Federal employees on the payroll than we will need from now on—perhaps a half million more than we need at the height of the war.

How did they get there, and why was Congress unable to stop the pay-roll raiding by the New Dealers?

Because Congress had given to the President, as an emergency measure, the authority it has under the Constitution to control such matters.

Only because the President had this authority was it possible for him to pyramid the vast structure of departments, bureaus and special agencies which now exists.

Under no other procedure, for instance, would it

FIRST SHORE BASE OF STATE TO BE DEDICATED

New Training Station For Merchant Seamen and Officers To Be Opened

TO TAKE PLACE TUES.

The first shore base ever to be established by the State of Pennsylvania for the training of Merchant Seamen and Officers will be dedicated on Tuesday, near Morrisville.

The new training station is under the command of Commander S. Roberts, U. S. N., and the training course at the present time is of two years' duration. Prior to the war a four-year course was in effect, but due to the great use and need for Merchant Marine officers, the training course has been greatly accelerated.

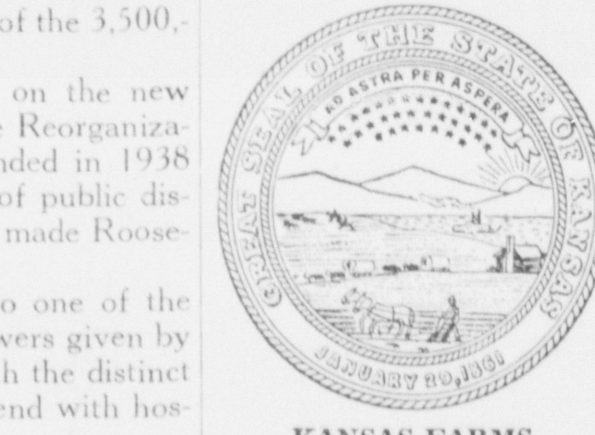

Highlighting the dedication ceremony will be a dinner served in the new modern mess hall of the Academy which feeds the future Merchant Marine officers. Attending the dinner will be several hundred national and local shipping leaders of this area.

The guest speakers will be Captain Norman L. Queen, U. S. M. S.,

KANSAS FARMS

More land is devoted to farming in Kansas than any other state except Texas. It produces one-fourth of the Nation's wheat supply, one-half of the hard winter varieties. Its farmers own more farms, more tractors than 46 other states. The largest farm publications firm has its home there. It produces more alfalfa and has more farms and expositions than any other state. The largest grain elevator operates there. As a unit of the Federal Government, the state stands as a rich permanent security behind War Bond investments.

GRADUATION ADDRESS IS BASED ON "WEALTH"

Hon. Thomas B. Stockham Speaker at Bristol Junior High Program

GRADUATES LISTED

The 88 members of the ninth grade, Bristol Township Junior High School, gathered to receive their certificates of promotion last evening, heard an address by the Hon. Thomas B. Stockham, of Morrisville, on the subject of "Wealth." The graduates and their families also witnessed the bestowal of American Legion and Auxiliary medals upon two members of the eighth grade, and enjoyed a program of music in the Bristol high school auditorium.

One of the junior high graduates was signally honored by being presented with $5 in cash. The award, for 9th grade student showing highest percentage of achievement, was bestowed upon Margaret Rohm. This award is the gift of William D. Knight, a member of the board of directors of the town ship.

The American Legion medals given for outstanding traits of character, such as honor, service, loyalty, Americanism and leadership, were given to Marcia VanLangen and Joseph Ashby, of the eighth grade. The medals and certificates were presented on behalf of Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, and the American Legion Auxiliary, by Percy G. Ford and Mrs. Earl McEuen, respectively.

Another high-light of the evening was the presentation of a gift to the school by the members of the graduating class.

The Hon. Mr. Stockham, member of the House of Representatives, Commonwealth of Penna., was introduced by Walter Miller, a member of the faculty. After conferring what has been given to the peoples of the world by the youth of this land in the past few years—the sacrifice of blood and the best that is in them—Mr. Stockham reminded that in this manner is the fine heritage of freedom of America spread to other lands.

Deiving into history he recalled how the forebears of the young people assembled on the platform came to this land "to secure something better than the wealth offered by the old land." He referred to William Penn and his early settlement at "Pennsbury," and of the fine need he had shown with posterity reaping the benefit. "The heritage of the seeds sowed by Penn later aided in the laying of the foundations of this country." The

Churchill Says War With Japan Might End Sooner Than Some Think

London—Prime Minister Churchill today indicated that a meeting of the "Big Three" is imminent and that he may be forced to leave Britain to confer with President Truman and Marshal Stalin.

Opening his own political campaign for the forthcoming general election, to be held either July 5 or 11, Churchill told an audience at Loughton:

"I have informed President Truman that the fact an election is pending in the future must not be allowed to delay even for a day a meeting of the heads of the three major governments. If I have to leave the country I hope you will make sure I don't suffer for it in my candidature."

Earlier, he expressed the belief that the war against Japan might end "sooner than some people think."

The 71-year-old Prime Minister gave his first speech in Woodford, in the opening guns of the political campaign precipitated by the Labor Party's refusal to continue as part of the coalition government until Japan is defeated.

Paterson Employees Vote Favorably for A. F. of L.

Voting by Paterson Parchment Paper Company employees on the choice of a union yesterday resulted in a decisive victory for an A. F. of L. affiliate by a vote of 152 in favor of the International Brotherhood of Papermakers against 117 who were opposed.

The final tally yesterday, conducted under the rules of the National Labor Board, reversed a vote held at the plant on March 11 when only 132 were in favor of the union, and 146 opposed.

These figures were released this morning by Joseph Carrella, representative of the International Union, and organizer at the Paterson plant.

According to Carrella, the voting yesterday assured sole bargaining rights for the International Brotherhood of Papermakers, A. F. of L., through Bristol Local No. 500.

Temporary officers of the recently formed local include: William McDonnell, president; William Serhak, vice-president; John Choma, recording secretary; John Hayden, financial secretary; Henry Gunther, treasurer.

SATURDAY, MAY 26, 1945

PRO PATRIA

On the fourth Memorial Day of this war, the bugles will sound taps around the world in tribute to Americans who have given
"the last full measure of devotion" in this and other wars. Each succeeding May 30 has seen the battle lines grow and the number of hallowed places where lie the dead increase until now the consecrated ground and the waters which silently received the casualties of war on the high seas gird the globe.

Throughout America grateful Americans will assemble in burying grounds, on old battlefields and beside the waters to pay reverent tribute to men whose love of country was greater than love of life. They made victory in the war in Europe possible.

Nor is it forgotten that in the great industrial struggle behind the battle lines, many lives have been lost. Men have taken risks that good safety practice would forbid in normal times, and many have paid with their lives, faithful to country and conscience as long as strength held out.

Soldiers die for a cause. In dying they have made their ultimate contribution and can do no more. The pulsating life which activated them to stake all for an ideal has ended. Their cause is henceforth irrevocably committed to those who still tread the earth.

From Memorial Day devotions and formal celebrations by military pageant, the youth of the land draw the spiritual sustenance to nourish a great tradition. Thus does the sacrifice of the heroic dead become the inspiration of youth in search of a way of life and a goal worthy of the best in the creed and purpose of free men.

STRAWBERRIES RIFE

With considerable pain devotees of old-fashioned strawberry shortcake are being forced to recognize that their chances of getting their fill of that most delectable dessert are none too good this year.

The situation is plain enough.
Practically everything that goes into real strawberry shortcake takes too many ration points for the housewife to afford. The berries themselves are obtainable at a price—but it takes shortening to make the cake, there ought to be butter to go with it, and of course a certain amount of sugar is needed to bring out the flavor of the scarlet juice. As for the whipped cream to top it off, it is hardly to be had.

So the times when strawberry shortcake comes to the table, in all its appetizing glory, are going to be few and far between in this fourth year of the war. The feat can be managed once or twice, perhaps, but certainly not as a regular thing.

But there is this to be said for strawberries—they are welcome even without the trimmings. In fact, shortcake probably was invented to make the fruit go farther.

True, they have to be ripe to be eaten from the hand, but it isn't always possible to get them at just the right stage. But at their best they are as good as any fruit going, or better.

Information Given Club Women on Food Freezing

CHALFONT, May 26 — Holding their last meeting of the season in the Methodist Church here, on Wednesday, the members of the Halfont Community Club enjoyed a covered dish luncheon, heard a report of the Spring meeting of the Bucks County Federation of Women's Clubs, welcomed two new members and were given a talk on the preparation of food for the lockers.

New members welcomed by the president, Mrs. Myrtle Walters, were Mrs. Howard Detweiler and Mrs. W. B. Brown.

At the close of the business session Mrs. Mary J. Fleetham gave a talk on the preparation of food for freezing. She explained the best methods of freezing, and said space in the lockers should be budgeted in order to provide room for all foods to be frozen.

Members of the club will be hosts to the junior club at a party in the borough hall tomorrow evening. Prizes will be awarded and refreshments will be served.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Wednesday afternoon, September 19th.

FALLS LASSIES WIN OVER BRISTOL IN LEAGUE GAME

Hitting Spree Started in The Early Innings of The Game

37 TO 3 IS FINAL COUNT

Sterling and Clay Leaders
In the Batting Festival

The Fallington Lassies registered a startling 37-3 victory over the Bristol ten to clinch their seventh win ending the eight game season. The hitting spree started in the early innings, with the Lassies hopping on the win wagon and holding their own there with this barrage of liners. This is the last league game of the season for the Lassies.

Sterling and Clay led the spree each sharing a four sacker. Both Swangler and Sterling rounded the bags to score five runs each. Laura Bachofer with two strike-outs to her credit, pitched the winning game. The Bristol ten failed at any time to rally, and the 3 runs scored by them proved a futile attempt to the Lassies' huge lead.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

the tremendous bonds of language and religion. There are the additional bonds of the same basic law and essentially the same system of government and economics. There are also the facts that nearly 40 per cent of our people are of English descent; that internationally we have the same great objective—to wit, peace—the same abhorrence of tyrants and bullies. To cap it all, it is unthinkable that the British and ourselves should ever war against each other or line up on opposite sides.

OUR interests are so similar, our mental processes so alike, our goals so identical that to argue otherwise does not make sense. Our differences are superficial. In the basic things we occupy common ground. In any international organization it is inevitable that, except in details, the British and American delegations act as a unit. That is the way it has been at San Francisco. That is the way it probably always will be. But that does not prevent either us or the British from loving the Russians—if they will just make that possible. We all want to love Russia, but it must be admitted that since Yalta she has been making it pretty hard. It isn't only the Polish question and the quite clear fact that Russia has not kept her Yalta agreements. Perhaps we can do nothing about that and it should not stand in the way of the San Francisco charter and co-operative relations. But there is more than that. There is the refusal to permit American or British correspondents and military observers to go into Russian-occupied Berlin. There is the refusal to let the American Minister to Czechoslovakia to enter the country to which he is accredited. There is the curtness with which the Russians treat American and British notes requesting information. And there are many other things of similar character.

HARDLY anybody disputes the facts. Nor do many defend the Russian course since Yalta and the Russian diplomacy at San Francisco. Of course, there is a Russian answer to every complaint—most of them plausible and some of them sound. But not even those who most strongly urge that we must "learn to live" with Russia and insist that the Russians, rather than the British, are of first importance to us defend all the Russian acts since the Crimean Conference. As a result, there now are two schools of thought about the Russians, both conceding that we must "live with them." One contends that we must recognize that Russian standards are not the same as ours; that they are sensitive, proud and, properly, put their own interests first; that the situation calls for sustained tolerance on our part. The other school says it is a mistake to continue coddling and appeasing the Russians; that they regard this as weakness and are encouraged to make further demands; that they would respect us more if we showed more firmness and less fear; that it is absurd to think that Russia does not need British-American friendship more than we need hers. Plausible arguments can be made for both views, but it seems impossible to dispute that whatever course is pursued our position will be stronger if we have unbreakable, unshakable bonds with other English-speaking nations. It may be that, by sending Mr. Hopkins to Moscow and Mr. Davies to London, President Truman will promote understanding with one and unity with the other. Both are highly desirable and this business of trying to stand in between just does not get us anywhere.

wealth of raw materials in America, and how through application of talent of man's brain and hand those raw materials can be made into valuable articles was well told. Tracing the advancement of not only the state of Pennsylvania but the United States of America through the development of transportation methods—the turnpike, the canal, the locomotive, and the airplane, Mr. Stockholm reminded that all came about through the "wealth of mind of the American girl and boy." "And back of it all there is and should be a reverence for God who has given man such wealth of mind, talent and material."

Continuing he said: "You girls and boys have the privilege of reaching out for the wealth of the world—a wealth that is to be had in many ways and many forms." He reminded that an exchange of ideas makes all doubly-rich. "An exchange of ideas in the laboratories is making of this country a great nation—the hope of the world. But don't forget as you continue your studies and then go out into the world to have an abiding faith in God. Don't ever give up our heritage of a faith in God and Christ. The good character you develop will be worth more than all the gold in the world."

The invocation and benediction were by the Rev. Robert F. Lang, pastor of Harriman Methodist Church. Vocal selections by the class were led by A. Erna McKeivitt, with Beverly Green as accompanist. Ann Weiland, a member of class, gave the address of welcome. Participants in a quartet number were Anita Rodgers, Mary Twigg, Joy Reed, and David Morrell. "Betty" McCoy sang "Hymn to the Sun"; and the farewell address was by Walter Lawton.

The promotion certificates were presented to the following by Harry Barth, president of the board of education, aided by Andrew Jackson, supervising principal of the township schools.

HUNTER GIRLS LOSE

The Fallington Lassies, in their only twilight game, once again showed their skill by defeating the Hunter ten, 16 to 6. This, though not a league game, proved the eighth win for the sluggers, out of nine tries. The sluggers in this game were Laura Bachofer and Smith, who shared homers, and Coghlan rounded the bags to score three runs. Lodge, Hermann and Lippincott shared homers on the opposing team, but even this worthy try proved futile to winning the game.

Thompson, Lola O. Titus, Phyllis M. Watson, Norman C. White.

A trial by jury was selected by the class as the members' means of presenting their views on education. The general subject covered was "Is the curriculum in a small high school flexible enough?" They gathered their information from high school and college graduates employed in various occupations, and added their own ideas to form a picture of high school education.

Dean Harold M. Smith, of Bordentown Military Institute, Bordentown, N. J., delivered the commencement address.

Orchestra numbers included: "Salutation" (Seitz), "Make Believe" from "Showboat" (Kern), "It's a Grand Old Flag" (Cohan), "The Blue Danube Waltz" (Strauss), and for the recessional, "Pomp and Circumstance" (Elgar).

H. Edmond Smith, a member of the faculty, presented the following awards:

Scholarship awards—English, Dorothy Carlen; social studies and shorthand, Philomena Petruccio; Latin and mathematics, Franklin Burton; science, Ronald Davis; typing, Bernice Michels; citizenship, Patricia Clay.

An Alumni award of $10 in war stamps, given for highest scholastic average for four years of high school studies, was received by Philomena Petruccio. The Morrisville Rotary Club award given to the class member who best exemplifies the Rotary motto "Service Above Self" was presented by William Murphy, a member of the club, to Ronald Davis.

Scholastic activity letters given for various activities and high scholastic averages were awarded to the following: Laura Bachofer, Dorothy Carlen, Philomena Petruccio, Evelyn Larsen and Franklin Burton.

Athletic letters were also awarded to players of hockey, soft-ball, baseball, basketball and football.

Middletown Grange Names Delegates to Pomona

LANGHORNE, May 26—When Middletown Grange met here Wednesday evening, Mrs. Leslie Kirk, Miss Marie Heston, George H. Yerkes and Herman Heston were named delegates to the quarterly meeting of Lower Bucks Pomona Grange, No. 22, meeting in the community house June 6th.

George H. Yerkes gave an account of the address by State Grange Master Fullerton at the meeting of Upper Bucks Pomona Grange, No. 50, in Plumsteadville. The master asked the opinion of the members regarding the farm labor situation, and many of the men said the work of the boys at the work camps at George School and Camp Onas has been satisfactory.

The literary program was in charge of the lecturer, Harry Wilson.

First Shore Base of State To Be Dedicated

supervisor of the State Maritime Academies; Scott Lamb, of the War Shipping Administration, who will discuss plans for the post-war Merchant Marine, and the part the State of Pennsylvania will play in training men for this great ocean-going fleet.

Following the dinner, the Cadet Midshipmen will hold open inspection, as well as demonstrations in seamanship, for the visitors.

The State training ship for the Cadets will be open for public inspection, as well as demonstrations, and guests will be invited to inspect the "gear" of a sea-going training vessel.

Prior to the new shore base, the Cadet Midshipmen were housed on the S. S. Keystone State, a new and modern training vessel, but due to the lack of space the new shore base was proposed by the State. Since the start of the war, over 500 officers from Pennsylvania have been graduated from the training program, and are now sailing as officers with the men of the Merchant Marine.

Cadets now on board the ship are from Pennsylvania only, as the State has sponsored the program, and its function is to train men from this State only as future Merchant Marine Officers.

flicted. Many as a result of flaming Kamikaze crashes onto their blood-redened decks.

Included in the casualty totals are the more than 800 men killed or missing in the bombing attack on the carrier Benjamin Franklin and the 30 killed on the destroyer Laffey which was blasted by seven suicide pilots while her blazing guns shot down 11 of the Kamikaze boys.

At the same time, Nimitz stated that 3,700 Army troops and 1,625 Marines have been killed or listed as missing in the most vicious struggle of the Pacific war on Okinawa. In addition, 13,910 infantrymen and 7,433 leathernecks have been wounded.

have happened that between twenty and thirty separate agencies were given authority over the single subject of labor relations.

So many agencies at this very moment have a finger in the food question that Congress has not yet been able to trace responsibility for the present shortages.

Yet the law which permitted the immense over-hiring during the period of man-power shortages is the very law which Truman wants re-enacted for the contrary purpose of simplifying and reducing public pay-rolls.

This, with a vengeance, is taking the hair of the dog that bit you!

The whole picture is painfully clear.

Hannegan and Truman learned their politics at the same school—that of the ill-fated Pendergast political machine in Missouri. What they learned they have not forgotten.

Unless Congress calls a halt, they plan to create the biggest and most uncontrollable patronage machine in the history of America.

The plan would make the "spoils system" invented by the patron saint of the Democratic Party's high command—Andrew Jackson—look like kid stuff.

For years we have skirted on the edge of a dictatorship run on the theories of Communism.

Now we are invited into a dictatorship dedicated to patronage.

It was suggested that the main walls of each side of the building will not necessarily have to be removed, but the windows be replaced by doors or openings. This would enlarge the most badly needed offices and would create additional space for a library, and not hinder the architecture of the present building, the Grand Jury reported.

Repairs to the roof over the Probation office, the roof over the Draft Board office, leaks in Court Room No. 2, a paint job and new lights in Court Room No. 2 were recommended.

Clothes racks in the ladies' room in the basement were recommended, and the Grand Jury also would like to see the gutters on the south side of the building cleaned of pigeon nests and leaves. They report finding dampness in the walls of the Annex Building and plaster rotting. No drinking water was found in the Administration Building and the second floor of this building was reported to be very poorly ventilated.

It was suggested that the present windows on the second floor of this building be removed and replaced with double hung windows.

For the County Home the recommendations include a new tank gas range to replace a coal range now used in the kitchen—in order to lower the temperature of that room. An exhaust fan is also recommended for the kitchen and hospital building. The jury report that they believe it is absolutely necessary to install sun rooms and an elevator in the main building. More fire extinguishers were recommended as well as some comfortable chairs for the elderly men. One additional toilet is recommended on each floor of the men's building.
